"NIL FALSI AUDEAM, NIL VERI NON AUDEAM DICERE". (Cicero.)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18th 1862

Second thoughts are best.

The blank disappointment and silent grief of the "Tribuna" and our other colleagues was hardly equal to the agreeable surprise of the bond-holders, on learning that the Chamber of Deputies had reversed their first vote and recognised the Paraná debt. It was confidently expected that, the back of the Opposition being broken by the second decree of the Senate, there would be at least one third of the Lower Chamber in favor of the national credit. Thus in Thursday's session, eleven votes, out of the number present (31), would have sufficed to carry the Bonds into law; and this is the secret, according to D. Ruiz Moreno, why the adverse deputies did not attend. It was plain that they could not out vote the bill, but then they could put off its consideration by leaving the House without a quorum. Finding ultimately that the question must be settled before the dissolution they assembled in barely sufficient number, the President having been obliged to wait for Sr. Cantilo, ere opening the session. Some of the upper provincials had already winged their flight, but many of our Buenos Ayrean members, who did not at first appear, to form a quorum, dropped in during the debate, to swell the vote of repudiation. A last effort was made to kill time, by repeating the used up objections formerly advanced, but the tables were turned by the secession of some of the provincials, who voted against the Bill on the first debate owing to the exception of the one million but eventually accepted the three millions, on the principle that "half a loaf is better than no bread".

The credit of the Nation was thus, luckily, saved by the very Chamber which first threatened to destroy it, and the announcement, that a majority of the deputies repented their former decision, is a magnificent testimony of the rectitude of our judgment when we said.—Congress cannot, dare not, question the National Bonds.

If the last million were included with the three million there would be room for objection, the former being improperly signed and applied to other purposes than those designated by the law of their creation. But, as Dr Alsina, and the Vice-president Paz emphatically argued, there could be no possible defence set up against the latter, which were issued and signed in the fullest regularity. The attempt to put off, reduce, or repudiate so just a claim would damn the new Republic in the eyes of Europe, where people are not so anxious to trace the distance between Paraná and B. Ayres, or weigh the shortcomings of ex-President Derqui's. The mere fact of Sr. Riestra's signature, which stands deservedly high in England, would invest the Paraná Bonds with the semblance of integrity and worth. Nor could the same party, very consistently, protest his bills as Finance Minister, while advocating his election as Governor of B. Ayres This would be kissing him on one cheek, while buffeting him on the other.

But there is a grand excuse about soldiers' caps and flint muskets sold at ten times their value. If paid for in specie, there might be a charge of collusion and fraud: we find, however, only paper-credits and bonds which rise and fall, and the Paraná credit was very low when Derqui bought his war-material. If the contractor had then speculated on Spanish bonds, he would have realised a considerable profit. No doubt he will now make largely, if he has any of those Paraná Bonds yet. The foreign houses also will gain on documents purchased at a heavy discount. This is but natural. The nation, of course, is the loser: experience teaches at a dear price, and if our deputies will call this debt immoral and nefarious, they can at least draw a moral from it—not to make war.

Revolutions in Bolivia.

The war of independence which terminated in 1825 relieved this country from the Spanish yoke, but whether owing to former misgovernment or to the rapid transition from a state of oppression, the inhabitants were unfit for the blessings of liberty.

The constant revolutions which have stained with blood the annals of this country, have no other origin than in these causes, and though nearly thirty seven years have passed, since the period of independence, there is little to boast of that glorious epoch.

Without entering into the history of those who have governed Bolivia, or weighing their merits for governing a nation, we may remark that this Republic can vie with Rome in the worst period of her Emperors: being like her, characterised by popular commotions, civil wars, deposition of rulers, and barbarous assassinations.

The first President of Bolivia was General Sucre, the conqueror of Ayacucho, who brought the revolution to a triumphant close, and was considered the father of the country: he was dangerously wounded by the troops in the second year of his presidency, and retired from the city, which still preserves his name, with feelings of indignation and disgust. He was subsequently assassinated in Bermeços, a province of Pasto.

The second President was General Urdininea, who was removed from his post, by a popular commotion, in the eighth month of his presidency, and banished to the frontiers of Bolivia.

The third President was General Blanco, a distinguished officer in the war of Independence, highly extolled by his enemies the Spaniards, for his daring feats: he succeeded to the command by the election of Congress, and was deposed by Generals Vallivian and Armaza, a few months after; and ignominiously dragged to a house in the suburbs of the town, where stretched upon a bed, he was barbarously shot.

The fourth President was General Santa Cruz; he was raised to the presidency by Vallivian and Armaza, who sent a commission to Chile, where he was residing: he was brought to Chuquisaca, installed in the presidential chair, and, subsequently, elected by the Congress. He remained in power for six years, when inflamed with ambition to extend his rule, he placed himself at the head of an expedition, and [illegible] upon Peru, for the purpose of uniting that country to Bolivia; and, ultimately failed in his object. On returning to the presidency, he [illegible] with despatches, from General Vallivian [illegible] his lieutenant and friend, who had raised him to power, declaring him a traitor to his country, and forbidding him to enter the Bolivian territory.

The fifth President was General Valavian, who ruled the destinies of Bolivia for three years: he was defeated in battle by General Belza, and narrowly escaped being taken and shot: he fled to Rio de Janeiro, and fell a victim to yellow fever, 3 days after [illegible].

The sixth President was General Belza; he was shot in the public promenade of Chuquisaca and left on the ground for dead: he, fortunately, survived his wounds, and though continually surrounded by a host of traitors, continued in the presidency till the termination of his period. He is the only President that completed his period.

The seventh President was General Cordova, son-in-law of Belzu, who was defeated in battle by the troops of Linares, in the third year of his command, and fled to Peru for safety. He returned to Bolivia in 1861, and was barbarously shot by order of the military commander of La Paz, under the pretext of promoting a revolution.

The eighth President was Doctor Linares, a lawyer, who was deposed, after a brief command, by a public revolt, and fled to the Republic of Chile, where he died shortly after.

He was succeeded by General Acha, the ninth and actual President of Bolivia, who after several civil wars which deluged the country with blood, was elevated by Congress to the presidency of the state.

Thus in the course of thirty seven years, nine presidents have ruled the destinies of Bolivia, whose careers have been singularly disastrous and unfortunate. Three of these presidents were barbarously assassinated: two fell victims to disease in a foreign climate. One died in exile on the frontiers of his country. Three are still living: Santa Cruz in Paris, Belzu in Peru, [both exiled] and General Acha, the actual President of Bolivia, whose life and government are seemingly in jeopardy.

Many of the authors of the revolutions during the period of these presidencies, have also met with an untimely end: the most conspicuous of these was Armaza, accomplice of Vallivian in the assassination of General Blanco, who after the battle of Yungay, fled to the mountains of Huaraz, and was taken prisoner by an officer, who stripped him of his sash and strangled him. Thus was verified a divine law—"Qui gladio ferit, gladio perit."

Cottonopolis.

We have been favored, by one of our leading importers, with the following important review of the Manchester cotton market:—

Great as were the changes, unprecedented [illegible] as were the prices quoted, [illegible] were the advance we had to comment upon in our last [illegible] into insignificance compared with those we have to record at present. Both in the Liverpool cotton market and also in [illegible] market, the whole interval that has elapsed has been the most remarkable that has ever [illegible] the history of the cotton trade into Great Britain, both for the extent of business and transactions, as compared with the actual stock and both markets, for the celerity with which prices have gone up, and the facility with which the most extraordinary advances have been, and indeed continue to be, responded to by purchasers. For the present, there is no chance of any supply of cotton from America, [illegible] state depending upon what small [illegible] other cotton-growing countries can give us, and the result, so far, is to have reduced the stock in Liverpool, at the end of last week, to [illegible], all kinds included, or less than [illegible]

The [illegible] of this fact only [illegible] [illegible] Great Britain [illegible] anticipated [illegible] [illegible] quarters than America. Of 4[illegible] bales of East India [illegible] on the water, [illegible] even with these supplies from India, whose [illegible] shipments must necessarily be very [illegible] subsequently, [illegible] [illegible] but little [illegible] [illegible] and what may be the [illegible] American [illegible]

It is impossible to give any [illegible] quotations for goods, they rise so rapidly from day to day. Compared with last month's prices, 7 8 printers [illegible] 6d, madapolams 2s, white shirtings 3s to 5s per piece, longcloths 3s 6d per piece, domestics 3s 1d per yard. The advance on cotton during the last month has been, on Surats, 6d to 7 1⁄2d per lb; on American, Brazilian and Egyptian 1od to 11d per do

Present value of cotton is quoted—Middling Orleans, 29d to 30d per lb; Common Surats, 18 1⁄2d to 19d do.

Yarns—The rise since our last has been unprecedented, as compared with the same space of time at any period, on mule and water-twist, low numbers. The advance in a month is 4 1⁄2d to 5 1⁄2d on 20 and 30, mule 7d per lb, and fine advance is up to 10d per lb

Water twist, last month's prices—No 30, 18 to 18 1⁄2—20d to 27d No 40, 22d—30d to 31d

Todavia el Algodon.

Paraná, October 16th 1861.

To the Editor of the STANDARD.

Muy señor mio—To those people who are inoculated with that intensely Yankee notion—that as soon as the war between the Northern and Southern States is finished plenty of cotton will be flowing into the English market, I would say a few words.

The world's population is increasing every day; and with its increase come of course, equally enlarging wants for clothing as for other artificial comforts

From a pamphlet by Mr. Henry Ashworth, on "Cotton, its cultivation manufacture and uses"— a paper read before the Society of Arts London on the 10th March, 1858, I wish to submit a few useful statements.

One of the most important—as regards a bright future, opening for the Argentine Nation, is the following:—"It is known that the cotton lands of the United States are limited in their extent ranging principally across th[illegible] country from 33 to 34 1⁄2 degrees of North latitude and that the cultivation of them IS TENDING CLIMATELY TO THEIR EXHAUSTION"!!!

The history of past ages tells us that every nation has had its epoch of rise and fall. Without wishing, or presuming to prophecy the [illegible] for the United States, I hope I shall not be blamed for seeing what [illegible] advance the former in the River [illegible] Plate territories.

Mr. Ashworth's looking for the future supply of cotton for the Leeca[illegible] market tend chiefly towards India. He shows that the [illegible] area of England is considered to be equal in extent to the surface of [illegible] yet whilst our most important wants of cotton could be supplied by the growth of a smaller surface than that of an English county, that which they have sent to England for the last [illegible] years has varied from 1-12th to 1-6th averaging about [illegible] of the consumption of Great Britain."

The part of this extract to which I would direct the attention of your Argentine readers is that the "most urgent wants of the English cotton market could be supplied by the growth of a smaller surface than that of an English county."

The supplies from India [illegible] great contrast with those from Egypt, mentioned in my former letter. May they [illegible] in eight or ten years [illegible] marked contrast with those from the Argentine Nation.

[illegible] cost of conveyance of a bale of 400 to 500lbs, [illegible] on the Mississippi, [illegible] has been as low as [illegible] [illegible] ranges from [illegible] [illegible] 6s 3 ; and it is therefore [illegible] and cheap conveyance and not in the cost of growth, that the present advantage of America over India as a cotton-growing country [illegible] accounted for."

If that be all the advantage, Mr. Ashworth—we have it here in its "[illegible]" and hope soon to have it in its cheapness;—for the Uruguay, Paraná, Salto, Paraguay, Vermejo [illegible] through a greater extent of territory than the Mississippi; and if the owners of estancias along their banks were to make begin [illegible] we would soon have cargo [illegible] [illegible] plying up and down.

Every estanciero could have a few cuadras planted. Even from [illegible] flotte, great consequences many come. Drops of rain make the [illegible]—rivulets make the [illegible] from the [illegible] flow the tributaries that form the river, that mingles its waters with the mighty ocean.

Mr. Ashworth further states: "In the early part of the present century the English supplies of raw cotton were received from upwards of thirty different parts of the world,—[illegible] from most of which we now receive none whatever, and as a consequence we are therefore dependent on the United States for seven-ninths of our supply.

So put your hand to the wheel my good estancieros,—quinta proprietors—agriculturists of all classes,— and you will never regret the hints thrown out to you by your country's best friend.

German Concert.

On Thursday evening we had the pleasure of assisting at the Concert given in the German Church, and have to congratulate the several ladies and gentlemen who took part in it: the Ave Maria sung by Mr. Kratisch was admirably performed, as also the aria de soprano in Mendelssohn's Hymn which was ably sustained by a well managed chorus: we must also congratulate the performer on the organ which was excellently played The assemblage was about 250 persons and we should have been better pleased to have seen the neat and pretty little edifice crowded.

The Church, partaking of that cheerful and at the same time modest protestant character, was nearly filled by a distinguished assemblage of Germans, English and natives to tender a service to the worthy Lutheran community of Buenos Ayres, and we could not but [illegible] with deep [illegible] to the rich [illegible] voice of the principal singer [illegible] Ave Maria [illegible]

Dr. Argerich is [illegible] son of [illegible] president of the [illegible] Democracy and about the same age [illegible] induced him to fight at the battles of Cepeda, Pavon, in the interior and in every deed of arms since 185[illegible] in defence of this his native province.

NEW APPOINTMENTS—Dr Cosme Beccar has been appointed National Auditor, he is a young rising lawyer and Deputy to the Provincial Legislature, and will act as [illegible] to the Government in all matters relating to the [illegible] departments

Dr Ros. Ferreira has been appointed Fiscal for the Nation, he is well qualified for the fulfilment of that post which he formerly had in Paraná.

Dr. Delfin Huergo to be under-secretary of State in the Finance Department; he lately held the same post in the Provincial Government, he is also a member of the Provincial Legislature and formerly editor of the Nacional.

ARGENTINES ABROAD.—General Concha, ambassador from Spain to France is a native of Cordova consequently an Argentine by birth.

RACES—The second day of the Argentine meeting is to be on Sunday: new races will take place which had not been mentioned in the programme.

NEW COURT—The Government have proposed to Congress the appointment of the National High Court of Justice, a tribunal which is greatly wanted and of the highest importance according to our Constitution.

Accordingly the members designated by the Government are understood to be the most eminent jurists in the country, which we feel bound to state is [illegible] [illegible] countries in [illegible]

Total sales of wool are estimated yesterday and to-day, at over 250,000 arrobes of the new clip, at from $85 to 100 for this province, and 33 rls. for Cordova

Freights British barque Cosmopolite to load in Uruguay for England for orders, bone ash and bones at private terms.

American schooner Target placed on the berth for New York.

It is also reported that the National schooner Carlota has been chartered to load salt at patagones for this port at 5 rls per fanega.

The Trade auction yesterday, at Messrs. Fels & Co. being the first of the season, excited much attention amongst the Importers. Various were the calculations as to the result, owing to the present critical position of the markets, but we are not in a position to assert that the result met the expectations of importers. Cottons, that is, zarazas, so'd well, realizing $ 130 the piece, but this was only for the best boxes; some cases were look d at and neglected. Hosiery of Cotton descriptions sold at high figures; but silks and woollen goods were neglected, owing, no doubt to the conviction that ounces are on the decline, and the prices of these articles must follow suit.

As a trade sale, it cannot be regarded as of much importance, as the majority of the goods were in small lots and consequently subject completely to the caprice of retailers. The sheep auction, by Billinghurst, at the estancia of the late John Dalton was well attended.

Mr Billinghurst has the satisfaction of having sold mestiza sheep at a higher figure than ever hitherto known in this country.

1st flock price $77 per head
2nd do at 74
3rd do at 68
4th do at 53

The last flock was in poor condition, and the sheep all lame

One of the principal native estancieros in this province sold, yesterday 4,000 mestizo sheep at prices ranging from fifty to sixty dollars per head, and has 2,000 more sheep on sale.

The same party also sold his wool for this clip say 7000 arrobes, including belly and legs, at 1000 per arrobe to be delivered in the plazas in Buenos Ayres

There have been other contracts effected also, but we find great difficulty in ascertaining the exact price and conditions. One contract has been made with a native estanciero, in San Antonio de Areco, for all the wool of 3 estancias, in that locality at $100, including belly and legs, to be delivered at the Onco.

There is talk of a contract for a well known Cañuelas wool, but the owner holds out for too high a figure, and as yet the matter is in 'statu quo.' Next week we expect some small lots of good mestiza from the partidos of the Capilla and the Fortin. As usual, however, cartmen are asking enormously high freights, and our camp friends have to suffer from the want of proper transit accommodation.

The following sale of 14,000 sheep in 9 flocks, was effected yesterday, at the undermentioned prices—

1st flock	at $18 per head
2d	do	at 70 4 rls	do
3d	do	at 69 4 rls	do
4th	do	at 69 4 rls	do

Le général Pope constate, dans un ordre du jour, que les officiers et soldats ont abusé de la proclamation qui ordonne à l'armée fédérale de subsister aux frais des pays qu' elle occupe. Le général défend de molester les citoyens dans leurs propriétés et déclare que tout acte de pillage et tout outrage sera puni.

Le général Lee a adressé une lettre au général en chef des fédéraux Halleck, pour le menacer de sérieuses représailles si les ordres de Pope étaient exécutés.

Le générale Frémont a été nommé commandant du premier corps d'armée sous les ordes de Pope.

Le bruit avait couru qu'une bataille avait été livrée le 7 á Farewel, que trois mille fédéraux s'étaient rendus, que les confédérés étaient en possession du Tennessée occidental, et enfin que les généraux Beauregard et Bragg se trouvaient á Chatanoga avec 7,000 hommes. Toutes ces nouvelles sont démenties par une dépeche semi-officielle de Washington, d'où il résulte que le combat de Farewell a eu lieu seulement le 9, et que les confédérés ont été repoussés avec des pertes considérables.

Un manifeste du gouvernement ordonne de commencer la conscription du 1er septembre. Les condition économiques ont améliorées, mais l'agitation occasionnée par la conscription continue. Il n'est pas permis de quitter le pays aux étrangers qui ont declaré avoir l'intention de devenir citoyens américains.

Une mère qui rencontre une autre

Il y avait, dans le premier quart de ce siecle, a Montfermeil, près de Paris, une façon de gargote qui n'existe plus aujourd'hui. Cette gargote était tenue par des gens appelés Thénardier, mari et femme. Elle était située dans la ruelle du Boulanger. On voyait au-dessus de la porte une planche clouée à plat sur le mur. Sur cette planche était peint quelquechose qui ressemblait á un homme portant sur son dos un autre homme, lequel avait de grosses épaulettes de général dorées avec de larges étoiles argentées; des taches rouges figuraient du sang; le reste du tableau etait de la fumée et représentait probablement une bataille. Au bas on lisait cette inscription: AU SERGENT DE WATERLOO.

Rien n'est plus ordinaire qu'un tombereau ou une charrette á la porte d'un auberge. Cependant le vehicule ou, pour mieux dire, le fragment de vehicule qui encombrait la rue devant la gargote du Sergent de Waterloo, un soir du printemps de 1818 eût certainement attiré par sa masse l'attention d'un peintre qui eût passé lá.

C'était l'avant train d'un de ces fardiers, usités dans les pays de forêts et qui servent á charrier des madriers et des troncs d'arbre. Cet avant-train se composait d'un massif essieu de fer á pivot où s'emboitait un lourd timon et que supportaient deux roues démesurées. Tout cet ensemble était trapu, écrasant et difforme. On eût dit l'affût d'un canon géant. Les ornières avaient donné aux roues, aux jantes, aux moyeux, á l'essieu et au timon, une couche de vase, hideux badigeonnage jaunâtre assez semblable á celui dont on orne volontiers les cathédrales. Le bois disparaissait sous la boue et le fer sous la rouille. Sous l'essieu pendait en draperie une grosse chaîne digne de Goliath forçat. Cette chaîne faisait songer, non aux poutres qu'elle avait fonction de transporter, mais aux mastodontes et aux mammons qu'elle eût pu atteler; elle avait un air de bagne, mais de bagne cyclopéen et surhumain, et elle semblait détachée de quelque monstre. Homère y eût lié Polyphème et Shakspeare Caliban.

Pourquoi cet avant-train de fardier était-il á cette place dans la rue? D'abord, pour encombrer la rue; ensuite pour achever de se rouiller. Il y a dans le vieil ordre social une foule d'institutions qu'on trouve de la sorte sur son passage en plein air et qui n'ont pas pour être lá d'autres raisons.

Le centre de la chaîne pendait sous l'essieu assez prés de terre, et sur la courbure, comme sur la corde d'une balançoire, étaient assises et groupées ce soir lá, dans un entrelacement exquis, deux petites filles, l'une d'environ deux ans et demi, l'autre de dix-huit mois, la plus petite dans les bras de la plus grande. Un mouchoir savamment noué les empêchait de tomber. Une mère avait vu cette effroyable chaîne, et avait dit: Tiens! voilà un joujou pour mes enfants.

SHEEP WASH.

A sure cure for the Scab in Sheep

No Sheep-Farmer should be without it.

This valuable preparation which is now used by nearly all the wool growers of this country is a concentrated extract, one pound of which is equal to ten pounds of tobacco, retaining in this compact form all the properties of the raw material. The only labor required to render the wash ready for use, is, to stir the paste into the quantity of cold water, needed for the number of sheep to be cured.

The most satisfactory recommendations of its perfect safety, simplicity and utility, from the principal Estancieros of this country may be had on application to the undersigned. Full directions for use are given on each tin.

Highly Important to Consumers of Kerosene Oil.

It having come to the knowledge of the undersigned that servants who had been sent to the Gran Fermacia (?) Luz del Plata, No 59 calle Florida for Oil, have been enticed to go elsewhere and purchase, and as such deception is calculated not only to impair the reputation of this establishment, but also to produce consequences of the most serious nature, the public are especially cautioned against this species of imposition. None but genuine Kerosene Oil—entirely free from colour or inflammability—has ever been, or will be, sold in this establishment.
